HE SHOOK OUT A BLACK SNAKE .-While a number of men were binding oats for Mr. Joseph Zimmerman yesterday, near Spring Grove, Pa., Amos Taylor bound a black snake which was nearly three feet long into a sheaf, and the first notice he got of the reptile's presence was when his snakeship crawled out and glided over his left hand. The snake was killed and work resumed. Fifteen minutes afterwards Samuel Zimmerman began jumping around. The others were about to run away, thinking the man was going crazy, until the poor man managed to open the wristband of his shirt sleeve and shake out a black snake ten inches long. It is thought the reptile got in while he reached under a sheaf.

The balloonists who went up in the Jupiter at Havre seven weeks ago and who were supposed to have been drowned off the coast of England have arrived safely in Paris. They met with many adventures and were only saved from starvation by the crew of a fishing bark, who ran across them in the open set and landed them at Camarch-sur-Mer, on the coast.
